Hi.

Given the surprising election result, I just got another call from the AAU, with an extended deadline of next Monday, for possible high level Trump administration appointees.

Please consider and send along any relevant names.

thx

Dear Royster and Laura,

I wanted to share with you an email that I was forwarded by a parent I know from her daughter who is a conservative Republican undergrad but NOT a Trump supporter. It points out that we have yet another group to worry about— marginalized republicans (including some Trump supporters) who are being ostracized for their political beliefs in the context of the current political ugliness.

Would welcome a discussion of how to reach out to this community without increasing the pain of the larger group of hurting students.

best,
mark

Dear Regents,

As you might imagine, today has been a day filled with uncertainty and disbelief at the surprising outcome of yesterday's election. The link, below, takes you to a message I sent out late this morning to the entire university community:

<http://president.umich.edu/news-communications/letters-to-the-community/2016-election-message/>

Independently, many of the Deans sent out their own messages of support to their school and college communities. We've assembled them here in case you are interested. Although uncoordinated, there is a striking consistency to their message.

Finally, we also have to be wary regarding a potential backlash focused on the minority of students on our campus who are Trump supporters and deserve the same civil treatment we urge for all other identity groups on campus. The vote in polling places on our campus (mostly students) ran 90% in favor of Mrs. Clinton.

Best,
Mark
